

CHRISTIAN SLAVES AT MALTA: 1271

ANTHONY LUTTRELL

Given the dearth of documents concerning Maltese history before the late fourteenth century, the chance survival of even a single text is of some importance, especially when it was drawn up on the island itself.<sup>(1)</sup> It is true that for a period following 1268 documents concerning Malta were entered in the registers of the Angevin kings of Sicily, and that some of these do survive, mostly in copies, and still await systematic study.<sup>(2)</sup> The manumission of 1271 published below was copied into a Pisan notarial formulary of which 24 paper folios survive, one document at folio 23 bearing the date 1306; the formulary inexplicably reached the archive of the Catalan Hospitallers now at Barcelona. The information contained seems reliable, though the formulae and phrases used at Malta in 1271 were, not unnaturally, unlike those found in a Pisan manumission of 1172 which are said to have come to constitute the standard Pisan form.<sup>(3)</sup> Why a Pisan formulary apparently compiled after 1306 should have made use of a Sicilianate text of 1271 from Malta in order to illustrate the correct form for freeing Christian slaves is unclear; the text could have been taken to Pisa by a notary, possibly the Angelo of the text, who had worked in Sicily. The fact is the more surprising as the manumission of 1271 follows immediately, and on the same folio, a brief and common form of manumission dated at Pisa and freeing another Christian girl apparently from Sardinia, Maria de tali loco Judicatus arboree.

The situation on Malta was doubtless unsettled following the Angevin occupation of 1268 and the continuing rivalries of Genoese and Pisans.<sup>(4)</sup> The new administration was working regularly by 1271,<sup>(5)</sup> though there were always dangers. In 1270 Guido De Mohac or Modica in southern Sicily complained that he and his sons, daughters and familia had been imprisoned after leaving Siracusa and being wrecked by a storm on the islet of Comino between Malta and Gozo, and on 18 December 1270 the King of Sicily ordered the Castellan of Malta and Gozo to release them.<sup>(6)</sup> In 1275 Raymundus, civis of Malta and sailor or marenarius, was captured by Genoese pirates while sailing from Africa on the barca of Bonsignori de Gaudisana of Malta.<sup>(7)</sup> It was on 4 March 1271 that Guido de Moghio freed a Christian woman named Margarita and her three daughters, Thomasina, Jacobina and Jannicta;

1. Summary of the sources in A. Luttrell, "Approaches to Medieval Malta," in Medieval Malta: Studies on Malta before the Knights, ed. A. Luttrell (London, 1975), 5-8. Charles Verlinden and Marco Tangherone most kindly supplied advice and information on particular points and problems.
2. I Registri della Cancelleria Angioina ricostruiti, ed. R. Filangieri et al. i - (Naples, 1950-).
3. Text and comment in C. Verlinden, L'Esclavage dans l'Europe médiévale, ii (Ghent, 1977), 396-397.
4. A. Luttrell, "Malta e Gozo: 1222-1268". X Congreso de Historia de la Corona de Aragón: Comunicaciones 1 y 2 (Zaragoza, 1980); idem, "Malta e Gozo: 1268-1282". XI Congreso di Storia della Corona d'Aragona, iii (Palermo, 1984).
5. Registri, vi. 165-166, 193, 201, 213, 223-226.
6. Ibid., vi. 187.
7. Ibid., xiii. 109-110.

whether they had been imported from Africa, were baptized indigenous inhabitants of Malta, or came from elsewhere was not made clear. Moghio was not a name found in thirteenth-century Pisa<sup>(8)</sup> and was conceivably an error for Mohac, in which case Guido de Mohac had been freed by 4 March 1271 and was manumitting members of his familia who had been imprisoned with him; that is merely a hypothesis. The slaves involved were clearly in a different situation from that of the white girl from Malta, named Maimuna and presumably an indigenous islander, who was sold by a Florentine to a Genoese, presumably at Genoa, in 1246;<sup>(9)</sup> or from that of other Maltese slaves being sold by Sicilians or Florentines,<sup>(10)</sup> or from that of Catherina Romannica slava or sclava Romanitica, presumably a Greek girl, who had been freed on Malta in or just before 1324 by the late Basilio Limeria, civis of Malta.<sup>(11)</sup>

The manumission was drawn up in proper legal form, using a Sicilian system of dating clauses, by Daniele de Danielis, public notary of Malta and Gozo, before Roberto de Ebulo or Eboli and Stefano de Matho judges of the castrum at Malta, and in the presence of witnesses whose names were not copied into the Pisan formulary. Daniele de Danielis is thus the earliest Latin notary recorded as acting on Malta. An Antonius de Cappillerio was a public notary there in 1274 and 1277,<sup>(12)</sup> while no less than four notaries appeared in an act drawn up on Gozo in 1299; one of them, Teninus de Daniele, may have been a kinsman of the Daniele de Danielis of 1271.<sup>(13)</sup> Thus in 1271, three years after an Angevin administration had been installed, the machinery of notary and judices was functioning on Malta.

Text from a Pisan notarial formulary in Barcelona, Arxiu de la Corona d'Aragó, Gran Priorato de Catalunya, Armari 24 Legajo 6, f. 2-2v (4 March 1271)

Carta Liberationis Ancille, Angeli notarij camerari<sup>(14)</sup>

In nomine domini Amen Anno dominice incarnationis m̄cc̄l̄x̄<sup>(15)</sup> quarta<sup>(16)</sup> die mensis marcij quartadecime indictionis Regnante domino Serenissimo rege karolo dei gratia inclito Rege Sicilie. ducatus apulee. Principatus Capue, Vrbis Senatorie,<sup>(17)</sup>

8. Information from Marco Tangherone.
9. Text in R. Lopez, "La vendita d'una schiava di Malta a Genova nel 1248". Archivio Storico di Malta, vii (1936), 391.
10. Indirect references in M. Balard, "Remarques sur les Esclaves à Gênes dans la seconde moitié du XIIIe siècle," Mélanges d'Archéologie et d'Histoire, lxxx (1968), 668-669. For Tuscan merchants dealing in girl slaves from Gozo, see R. Davidsohn, Storia di Firenze, vii (trans: Florence, 1977), 633-634.
11. Text in H. Bress, "Malta dopo il Vespro Siciliano". Melita Historica, vi no. 3 (1974), 320-321.
12. A. Luttrell, "The Sale of Gumerin on Malta: 1318". Estudios Históricos y Documentos de los Archivo de Protocolos, vi (1978), 167.
13. Text in Bress, 317-320.
14. MS: camerini?
15. Read m̄cc̄l̄x̄, since Indiction XIV and regnal year six give 1270 of the Incarnation, ie. 1271.
16. The scribe wrote iiij and then crossed it out.
17. Sic.

Andegaue prouincie, et fulch[uerii]<sup>(18)</sup> comite Romani imperij in tuscia per sanctam Romanam ecclesiam vicario generali. Anno vj sexto<sup>(19)</sup> Regni eius feliciter Amen. A primordio conditionis humane liberum hominem natura produxit, sed humana necessitate postmodum exigente, bellica inter gentes est orta calamitas. exqua de jure gentium introducta est seruitus. per quam quod natura contulit, iniquitas bellorum obduxit. Ideoque necessaria fuit juris melioris origo. Per quod obductio facta detegitur et libertas obducta patet in publicum dum beneficio juris ciuilis manumissio celebratur. Hac igitur consideratione deducti. Nos Guido de moghio. Considerata fide deuotione et gratis seruitiis, que tu Margarita ancilla nostra, et filie tue Thomasia et Jacobina et Jannicta ancille nostre nobis diu et fideliter prestatas. Considerato etiam quod Christiane estis et fideles nec debetis de jure laqueis seruitutis inuolui. quam de seruitute christi sanguis exiuit. Vt de tua et filiarum tuarum predictarum fide et fidelitate licetis<sup>(20)</sup> te et filias tuas predictas. In presentia Ruberti de Ebulo et Stephani de Natho iudicum subscriptorum Castri malte<sup>(21)</sup> notarij danielis de danielis puplici insularum maltij et Guadicii<sup>(22)</sup> notari<sup>(23)</sup> et testium subscriptorum ad hoc specialiter vocatorum et rogatorum manumissionis beneficio tanquam bene meritas. adornamus dantes vobis predictis Margarite et Thomasie. Jacobine et Jannicte et heredibus uestris in perpetuum plenissimam libertatem. Vosque de manu et potestate nostra dimittimus. Vt sine aliquo seruitutis obstaculo ab omni iugo seruitutis extote absolute et libere. et vt in Ciuitate et libertate letemini et habeatis personam et potestatem emendi. vendendi. permutandi obligandi uos et in iudicio persistendi. perhibendi testimonium. testamentum et quamlibet uoluntatem ultimam faciendi. exercendi omnia que posset quelibet ingenua exercere. Nullo uobis super premissis uel similibus preterite conditionis obstaculo existente. Vnde ad huius Rerum certitudinem et Robur inperpetuum ualituram. presens scriptum publicum factum est de premissis per manus mei predicti notarij danielis nostrum que supra iudictione subscriptionibus et testium subscriptorum testimonio ac sigillo pendente eiusdem domini Guidonis muninime roborate. Actum etc. M.cc. etc. Iudictione etc. tali die etc.

18. Ie. Count of Provence, Anjou and Forcalquier.

19. Sic.

20. A word or words seem to have been omitted.

21. MS: Māt Mält.

22. Read Gauditij, ie. of Gozo.

23. Sic.